Course description:

This course is a comprehensive survey of the development of the western world from ancient times to the present day. One aim of the course is to define “the West” and “civilization” in terms of political and economic systems, social structure, and culture. A second aim is to give students an appreciation for the historical development of the west and its relevance to the modern world. The broad sweep of this course requires students to focus on themes and connections that lead from the distant past to today. These themes include the rise of government and political ideologies, the development of economic enterprise, changes in religious or philosophical ideas, the growth of social structures, and the creation of cultural expression, all of which illustrate the western world’s particular characteristics. Finally, in keeping with the University’s expectations for CORE courses, this class emphasizes the development of analytical and critical thinking skills which will be shown through class discussion and in the reading and writing assignments and the final exam.

Required course materials:

Joshua Cole, Carol Symes, et al. Western Civilizations: Their History and Their Culture, (3rd brief edition). W.W. Norton, New York, London, 2012. ISBN: 978-0-393-93487-8

Tom Standage. A History of the World in 6 Glasses. Bloomsbury, New York, London, 2005. ISBN: 978-0-8027-1552-4

Primary source readings will be assigned from the textbook study site: www.books.wwnorton.com/StudySpace. You need to register for the site with the access code inside the front cover of your textbook.

The books are available through the bookstore, of course, but also through on-line sites, from the publisher, and as e-books and text-rentals. As a last resort, there will be one copy of each book on reserves at the Johnson Center library, which can be checked out for only 2 hours at a time.

General information:

Please arrive on time to avoid disruption. Please remember to turn off anything that beeps, vibrates, or rings before the start of class. Also, remove earbuds or headphones.

You must ask for permission and provide documentation from the Office of Disability Services to use laptops, cell phones, or any recording devices. The only students who may use laptops etc. are those who have a documented need to do so. Those who use laptops or recording devices are to be taking notes and attending to the class lecture, not texting, checking email, etc.! E-etiquette is expected at all times. The first time I spot unauthorized use of electronic devices will be a warning; the 2nd time there will be blanket shut-down. The 3rd time: no further use of any electronic devices. Those individuals who have a documented need for electronic usage must also adhere to e-etiquette expectations.

The fastest and surest way to contact me is by e-mail (jwalmsle@gmu.edu). Please provide your full name or class information (something which clearly identifies the message) in the subject line. Also, I ask that you consider e-mail as a formal communication; it should be written with attention paid to grammar and spelling. E-mail should deal specifically with questions about the course, not to let me know you will be missing class; you alone are responsible for getting any information you may have missed from someone else in class.

Students requiring special accommodations (clients of the ODS, student-athletes, etc.) need to speak with me as soon as possible at the start of the semester and provide all relevant documentation.

SCHEDULE OF READINGS AND ASSIGNMENTS:

All assignments are subject to change. The reading assignments are for the week in question and should be completed by the start of each week.

The primary text (Cole) has a rich set of on-line resources at:

www.books.wwnorton.com/StudySpace

The registration code is inside the front of the textbook on the back of the page after the 2-page world map. Make sure you take a look at each chapter's on-line maps, quizzes, documents, images, etc. It is a free complement to the textbook and will add to your comprehension and retention of the text's material.

Please note that many of the on-line readings and the chapters assigned from Standage are not necessarily chronologically aligned with the weekly chapter assignments. The order of presentation of class material does not dovetail with the textbook's chapter organization. Reading ahead will never hurt you!!

Also, please note: the on-line material is organized alphabetically, not chronologically, so you must pay attention to when as well as what or who the various readings are about. See, for example, the readings for week 5!
