HIST 387-006: History of Taiwan

Course Description:

Taiwan has a rich history, with its strategic geographic location attracting a succession of pirates, colonial powers, and settlers driven by poverty and chaos in China to this fertile land originally populated by Austronesian peoples.

Today, Taiwan is an international flashpoint, the one place where the possibility of war between major powers exists. This course will explore the factors that have created this complex situation: claims to sovereignty over the island over the course of centuries, the post-World War II matrix of decolonization and self-determination, shifting U.S. policy toward the island, and the drive for democracy with its attendant heightened sense of a unique Taiwanese identity developed over the past decades.

This course is designed to familiarize students with the history and people of Taiwan and its success in transforming itself from an authoritarian, underdeveloped country into a free and vibrant democracy. The course will also explore the complex triangular relationship among Taiwan, China and the United States.

The first part of the course will survey the history of Taiwan and will cover the original inhabitants, the Dutch and Spanish occupations, the Koxinga period, the Manchu (Ch'ing) era, Japanese colonial rule, and the Republic of China on Taiwan after World War II. The second and third parts will focus on the democracy movement as well as explore Taiwan's relationship with China and the U.S.

We conclude with Taiwan's arrival into the 21st Century as a vibrant democracy. As we travel through the country's history, we will also touch on a broad range of issues such as the environment, arts and culture.

Course Requirements and Grading

1. Class attendance and participation (30%). Regular class attendance and active participation in class discussions are expected of all students. Although the class will be conducted primarily in a lecture format, students are invited to contribute their thoughtful comments in the class.
2. Three 5-6 page analysis pieces (35%). Professor will provide two or three topics, with appropriate readings and suggestions for further research, for students to choose from and to write up their analyses. Papers should include footnotes of sources used and quoted. The papers will be due on the dates listed in the syllabus. The papers may be typed and handed in or posted to the professor's email account: gvanderw@gmu.edu
3. Take-home final examination (35%). The examination questions will be distributed during the last day of class.
