II. Course Overview

Catalog Description: A study of theories of economic growth, alternative approaches to development policy, and their applications in various developing countries or regions.

Learning Outcomes: This course is both a general education course in global understanding and an upper-division elective within economics.

As a general education course in global understanding, this course strives to help students:

- Develop an understanding of global patterns of economic activity and its interaction with society
- Identify, evaluate, and properly cite resources appropriate to researching the policies of economic development
- Apply awareness of global issues to a consideration of individual or collective responsibilities within the context of economic development.

As an upper-division elective in the discipline of economics, this course strives to help students:

- Understand and apply relevant economic concepts and theories to frame research questions and policy debates within the field of development.
- Analyze economic arguments in both the popular press and academic research on economic development by breaking down arguments and identifying the relevant concepts and theories from economics.

Topics Covered: Below is a list of the concepts, theories, and policies that will be covered in the class

- Traditional Economic Theories of Growth
- Inflation and Currency Stabilization Policy
- International Aid, Debt Relief, and Government Spending
- Trade Policy
- Poverty Traps, Human Capital, and Health Economics
- Imperfect and Informal Markets
- Social Entrepreneurship and Market-based Incentives

Learning outcomes will be demonstrated through written assignments, oral presentations, a group research paper, exams, and classroom participation.

Readings & Textbooks: Reading assignments will be provided after each lecture to allow for flexibility in responding to students' interest. Most readings will be drawn from the following textbooks:

- Perkins, D., Radelet, S., & Lindauer, D., (2013). Economics of Development, 7th Edition, Norton Press.
- Easterly, W. (2002). The Elusive Quest for Growth, MIT Press.
- Banerjee, A. & Duflo, E. (2011). Poor Economics: A Radical Rethinking of the Way to Fight Global Poverty. Public Affairs Press.

Additional readings will be posted on the course site at <http://mymason.gmu.edu>

IV. Course Policies:

Course Expectations: It is expected that all readings will be complete by the start of class and that you come to class ready to participate. In addition, this class requires significant writing assignments as well as familiarity with graphing and algebraic computations. If you find yourself struggling with the material at any time, please make an appointment to talk with me as soon as possible. I have strategies that might be helpful.

Class Participation: Attendance and class participation are necessary to have a successful experience in this course. In the event of an excused absence, the policy paper and exams dates can be rescheduled. If you are unable to attend class for an excusable reason, please contact me before the start of class and for a missed exam or paper, please provide proper documentation. Please note that it is NOT possible to make-up in-class work or the research assignments—even in the event of an excused absence. However, I will accept any assigned work prior to the due date.

Electronic Devices: Regarding electronic devices (such as laptops, cell phones, etc.), please be respectful of your peers and your instructor and do not engage in activities that are unrelated to class. Such disruptions show a lack of professionalism. If disruptions are interrupting other students' learning, you may be asked to leave the classroom.

Communication: Students must use their MasonLive email account to receive important University information, including messages related to this class. See <http://masonlive.gmu.edu> for more information.

Honor Code: GMU has an Honor Code with clear guidelines regarding academic integrity. Three fundamental and rather simple principles to follow at all times are that: (1) all work submitted be your own; (2) when using the work or ideas of others, including fellow students, give full credit through accurate citations; and (3) if you are uncertain about the ground rules on a particular assignment, ask for clarification. Plagiarism means using the exact words, opinions, or factual information from another person without giving the person credit. Writers give credit through accepted documentation styles, such as parenthetical citation, footnotes, or endnotes. Paraphrased material must also be cited, using MLA or APA format. A simple listing of books or articles is not sufficient. If you have any doubts about what constitutes plagiarism, please ask.

Important: No person should be denied educational access because of a disability. If you are a student with a disability and you need academic accommodations, please see me and contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS) at 993-2474, <http://ods.gmu.edu>. All academic accommodations must be arranged through the ODS.
