Course Description: This course is a survey of modern Chinese history from the seventeenth to the mid-twentieth centuries (1600-1950s). The course will explore the momentous changes in the relationship between state and society from the founding of the Qing dynasty to the founding of the People's Republic of China (PRC). Themes to be covered include imperialism, nationalism, ethnicity & race, gender, and revolution (political, social, and cultural) during these three and a half centuries of Chinese history.

Required Texts: The titles below are all available for purchase at the GMU Barnes & Noble in the Johnson Center.

1. Jonathan D. Spence. The Search for Modern China. 3rd edition. Norton, 2013.
2. Henrietta Harrison. The Man Awakened from Dreams: One Man's Life in a North China Village, 1857-1942. Stanford, 2005.
3. Wang Zheng. Women in the Chinese Enlightenment: Oral and Textual Histories. U.C. Press, 1999.

In addition to the titles above, readings in the schedule marked by a single asterisk (*) and followed by (.pdf) are available at the "Additional Material" page on our course website (password = modchina).

Requirements & Grading: You must demonstrate serious engagement with every requirement in order to pass this course. The instructor reserves the final right to determine what constitutes "serious engagement."

1. Participation (25%): I expect you to attend every one of our scheduled meetings and to be fully prepared. This means finishing the assigned readings listed for that day before coming to class. The quality of your written and oral contributions both in class and online will be considered as indicators of your participation.

2. In-class Map Quiz (5%): see 2nd map in front of Search for Modern China (3rd ed., 2013) Wed. 9/6/2017.

3. Papers (45%): In order to hone your critical reading & writing skills, you are required to complete three (3) short (5-6 pg.) papers due in-class on Mon. 9/18/2017, Mon. 10/23/2017, & Mon. 11/13/2017. Further instructions will be provided in class. Procedures for the submission of written work are listed below (see Course Policies, points c and d).

4. Take-Home Final Examination (25%): take-home essays; due in my departmental mailbox (Robinson B, Room 359) by 12:00 p.m. (noon) on Wednesday 12/13/2017. No late work will be accepted for the final exam.

Course Policies, Reminders, and Helpful Tips

a) Class absences: Students are expected to attend all meetings of the course. In the event that you must miss class, you are responsible for the contents of the lecture or discussion. Students are expected to come to class on time. Late arrivals are disruptive, and late-comers may miss important information or hand-outs.

b) Cell phones and laptop computers: During class all phones must be switched off and put away. Neither students nor instructors should compose, read, or respond to text messages during class. Students who wish to use a laptop computer for note-taking are welcome to do so. However, students who use laptops for purposes other than taking notes (i.e., email, instant messaging, internet browsing unrelated to the course) will be asked to leave and will no longer be permitted to use a computer in class. Violation of these policies will result in a significant reduction in your course participation grade.

c) Submission of written work: All written work is due at the beginning of class in hard copy on the day indicated on the syllabus. All written assignments should be typed, double-spaced, with 1-inch margins and in a 12-point font. Your name should be on the paper, and all pages should be stapled and numbered. You must submit your work in hard copy only; no email attachments will be accepted (unless prior arrangements with the instructor have been made). You should, however, retain electronic copies of all written work, and your instructor may ask for an electronic copy of your paper in order to use it as an example in teaching or to submit to a plagiarism detection site like Turnitin.com.

d) Late policy: All students are responsible for knowing and adhering to the deadlines for course assignments. Late work will be penalized ONE FULL LETTER GRADE (10 pts.) per day (including weekends & holidays). The only exceptions will be when you have explicit, advance permission from your instructor. If you anticipate a problem in completing or submitting your work on time, you must contact the instructor in a timely manner. If you do not hear back from your instructor, you should assume that your work is due on the original date. Regardless of whether or not you have been granted an extension, you must contact your instructor for how to submit late work. Late assignments will not be considered as “received” until a hard copy is in the instructor’s hands. No late work will be accepted for the take-home final exam.

e) Plagiarism: Don’t do it. It’s easy to spot & can result in expulsion from the University and loss of degree. What is plagiarism? As noted by the American Historical Association (AHA), “Writers plagiarize... when they fail to use quotation marks around borrowed material and to cite the source, use an inadequate paraphrase that makes only superficial changes to a text, or neglect to cite the source of a paraphrase.” For details see pgs. 3-4 of this document: http://www.historians.org/Documents/Plagiarism/Curriculum_Plagiarism.pdf

If you have any questions about what constitutes plagiarism, or about when or how to properly cite a source, talk to your instructor before you write! For more information see these very helpful websites:

f) Academic accommodations. If you are a student with a documented condition that warrants academic accommodations, please see me and contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS) at 703-993-2474. All academic accommodations must be arranged through ODS (<http://ods.gmu.edu/>). Additional support may be obtained through Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS): <http://caps.gmu.edu/>

g) Electronic communication. It is best to contact me at mchang5[at]gmu[dot]edu. I usually check email during normal business hours, namely M-F, 8 am-5 pm. Please allow 24-48 hours for a reply to an email request or inquiry (excluding weekends). Please sure to indicate your course number in your email subject line and include both your first and last name in your signature. For general advice on the best way to communicate via email, see:

All violations of the Honor Code will be reported to the Honor Committee for review.
