After the 2018 midterm elections, 27 states have Republican governors and 23 states have Democratic governors.

In states with Republican governors, 10.5% of the total population is foreign born.
In states with Democratic governors, 15.6% of the total population is foreign born.

26.6 million foreign-born individuals live in states with Democratic governors.
15.5 million live in states with Republican governors.

13.2 million naturalized citizens live in states with Democratic governors.
6.8 million naturalized citizens live in states with Republican governors.

63% of the total foreign-born population lives in states with Democratic governors, while 37% lives in states with Republican governors.
After the 2018 midterm elections, there are 30 states that have Republican-controlled state legislatures (both houses controlled by Republicans).

18 states have Democratic-controlled legislatures (both houses controlled by Democrats).

Only Minnesota has a split legislature. Nebraska has a unicameral, nonpartisan legislature.

17.2 million foreign-born individuals live in states with Republican-controlled legislatures. 24.3 million foreign-born individuals live in states with Democratic-controlled legislatures.

58% of the total foreign-born population lives in states with Democratic-controlled legislatures while 41% lives in states with Republican-controlled legislatures.

12.2 million naturalized citizens live in states with Democratic-controlled legislatures. 7.5 million naturalized citizens live in states with Republican-controlled legislatures.