Do you feel like you belong at Mason?

Check University Life and Mason 360 to explore campus events, including lectures, music, theater performances, movies, dances and more. These are typically free for students, and offer a chance to meet new people.

TIPS TO FEEL LIKE A PATRIOT

Join or start a club
Check University Life to learn more about joining existing student organizations or the process to start your own.

Support culture, equity, and empowerment
Engage with learning opportunities focused on advocacy, equity and inclusion at George Mason University. Collaborate with other students to foster identity development, cross-cultural engagement, and inclusive learning communities. The Center for Culture, Equity, and Empowerment (CCEE) provides a space to meaningfully engage and interact with people with different identities and intersections to co-create an equitable campus environment.

Participate in community service or volunteering
Community service and volunteering can really help broaden your horizons. Not only will this provide you with a sense of pride for giving back to your community, but it will provide you with valuable skills and help to build your resume.

Connect with your academic department
Explore what happens at your specific academic program. Check your major’s website or meet with your academic advisor to find out about department events, news, student life, research and awards opportunities.

Attend campus events
Check University Life and Mason 360 to explore campus events, including lectures, music, theater performances, movies, dances and more. These are typically free for students, and offer a chance to meet new people.

Get a job on campus
Work study and on-campus jobs are an excellent way to meet new people, make new connections and learn more about various college and university services. On-campus positions are more flexible with your school schedule and student life, too.

Student Involvement
Mason Student Involvement encourages students to think creatively. They offer opportunities to put ideas into action, learn from hands-on experiences, meet new people, develop life-long friendships and gain skills that will help students be ready for any opportunities in the future.

Study abroad
Mason students are part of an international community. Our students come from dozens of countries, and faculty members have research partners worldwide. Opportunities for international study and service abound in every department and program.

EXPLORE

- Handshake
- Mason 360
- University Life
- Student Involvement
- Center for Culture Equity and Empowerment (CCEE)
- CHSS Academic Departments
- Study Abroad

NEXT

Write down a quick list of things you will do this semester to feel more connected with Mason.