Course Information:
3 credit hours. Examines history, theory, practice, ethics, and current problems of collecting and displaying art and artifacts to the public. Emphasizes issues central to museums in Washington, D.C., or museums in other locations. Mason Core: Synthesis.

Description: This course will focus on the emergence and development of museums in the western world; the role of museums in social, educational, and political life; and the history and theory of collecting. We often think of museums as neutral institutions with a purely educational purpose, but we will see that throughout the modern era they have been associated with political and social messages as well. What are the origins of the modern museum? Where do the pieces in museums come from and to whom do they belong? What kinds of narratives have museums created and reinforced in their visitors? What happens to an object when it is removed from its context and placed in a museum? We will address all these questions as we trace the development of museums from their medieval origins to the twenty-first century.

Goals: By participating in this course, students should meet the following goals:
- understand the history, origins, and development of the modern museum
- synthesize information to articulate critical responses to objects and texts
- analyze and evaluate museological and curatorial practices in their historical context
- develop skills of academic communication, both written and oral

Mason Core: The Synthesis requirement provides students with the opportunity to synthesize the knowledge, skills and values gained from the Mason Core curriculum. Synthesis courses strive to expand students’ ability to master new content, think critically, and develop life-long learning skills across the disciplines. Students who successfully complete a course in the Synthesis category must meet the following learning outcomes:
1. Communicate effectively in both oral and written forms, applying appropriate rhetorical standards.
2. Using perspectives from two or more disciplines, connect issues in a given field to wider intellectual, community or societal concerns.
3. Apply critical thinking skills to evaluate the quality, credibility and limitations of an argument or solution using appropriate evidence or resources.

Class Communication: The best way to reach me is by email at vschulma@gmu.edu. Please allow up to 48 hours for a response. I will send important reminders to your GMU email, so be sure you check that account or have your mail forwarded to an account you check regularly.

Readings: Readings will be made available as PDFs on Blackboard. Readings should be completed before the class meeting for which they are listed. This is a reading-intensive course.
Grading and Assignments:

- Participation: 10%
- Discussion Questions: 10%
- Short Papers (3): 30%
- Final Project: 30%
- Presentations (2): 20%

Participation: Participation starts at a C (75/100), but when you participate, that will quickly go up. You can use electronics, but please don’t text, post on Instagram, stream video, etc.

Discussion Questions: For each class meeting, bring at least 3-4 substantive questions about the readings. Questions could address issues you want to discuss in more detail, disagreed with, or were not sure about. These will be used to start discussion and will be collected at the end of class.

Short Papers (3): Three 2-3 page papers, reflecting on visits to three different museums: an art museum, a science/natural history museum, and a history/anthropology/culture museum. You may submit the papers in any order, but you must visit all three types of museums. Papers are due Friday Feb. 7; Friday Feb. 21; and Friday March 6. Use Blackboard to view instructions and submit.

Final Project: After completing three museum visits, choose one and pinpoint a specific issue where their current museum practices could be improved. For your final project, you will write a proposal highlighting the problem and offering practical solutions backed by theoretical and contextual research. The final paper will be approximately 6 pages (10 for graduate students).

The following scaffolded sections of the assignment are ungraded and are intended to keep you on track. However, for each step you miss, 10 points will be deducted from your project’s final grade.
- Crowdsourcing/brainstorming class session: Wednesday 3/18
- Submit one-paragraph abstract and bibliography: Friday 3/27 (submit online)
- Rough draft for in-class peer review and optional instructor review: Wednesday 4/15

Presentations (2):
Discussion Leader (10%): Choose one of the course readings to present to the class. The presentation can be informal. You should outline the reading’s key points and then engage us with questions or an activity. Generally these presentations (including discussion) last about 15 minutes.

Final Presentation (10%): The last two meetings are devoted to student presentations of final projects. You will give a 10-minute formal presentation of your project, followed by 5 minutes of class discussion. Unlike the first presentation, this one should be structured, practiced, and rehearsed ahead of time. You should provide visual aids, when appropriate.

Late work: Penalized 5 points for each 24 hours past the due date. Extensions will be granted if deemed appropriate when students submit a request in writing at least one week before the due date.

A Note on Attendance: Excused absences include illness, family emergency, and religious observance. Chronic absenteeism without notification will result in the following penalties:

Evaluation of Student Work: I use the following measurements of student performance. All assignments will be graded using a 100-point scale.

A+ (98-100)  A (93-97)  A- (90-92)  Clearly stands out as excellent performance
B+ (87-89)  B (83-86)  B- (80-82)  Level of work is good to very good
C+ (77-79)  C (73-76)  C- (70-72)  Level of work is satisfactory to average
D (60-69)  Work is below average and marginally acceptable
F (below 60)  Quality and/or quantity of work is unacceptable

Academic Honesty: Academic dishonesty constitutes a serious violation of your learning process and your social contract with other students. Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to:

- failure to cite sources for quotations and ideas
- cutting and pasting text from other sources
- passing off another’s work as your own
- purchasing or copying a paper found online
- reusing a paper you wrote for another course

I have a zero tolerance policy for academic dishonesty, whether intentional or not. Students who violate standards of academic honesty will earn a zero for the assignment and may risk failing the course or being subject to disciplinary action. More information, including definitions of cheating, lying, and plagiarism, can be found at the Office of Academic Integrity website at oai.gmu.edu.

Support Resources for Students

Accommodations: Disability Services at George Mason University is committed to providing equitable access to learning opportunities for all students by upholding the laws that ensure equal treatment of people with disabilities. Students can begin the registration process with Disability Services at any time during their enrollment at George Mason University. If you are seeking accommodations, please visit ds.gmu.edu, email ods@gmu.edu or call (703) 993-2474.

I am committed to providing all accommodations approved by Disability Services. Please note that faculty do not automatically receive notice of accommodations from ODS, so be sure to contact me directly to discuss how we will implement your approved accommodations.

Help with Writing: If you have struggled with writing in the past, or if English is not your first language, you may want to seek help from the Writing Center. They offer one-on-one tutoring and workshops throughout the semester. Robinson-B213, or writingcenter.gmu.edu

Emotional and Mental Support: College life is complicated. Students may find it helpful to talk with a professional. Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) can help address both personal and academic concerns. Services are free and confidential. SUB I, Room 3129, or caps.gmu.edu

LGBTQ Resources: LGBTQ Resources “works to promote the academic success, health and well-being of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer students and their allies.” lgbtq.gmu.edu

Diversity: The Office of Diversity, Inclusion, and Multicultural Education provides support for an inclusive campus, including first-generation and undocumented students. odime.gmu.edu
