This course is designated as a Student as Scholars Scholarly Inquiry course where students learn about the process of scholarly inquiry by examining prior scholarship and through the preparation of an original research paper. In this Scholarly Inquiry course students will:

- Articulate a scholarly question
- Engage in the key elements of the scholarly process

Situate the concepts, practices or results of scholarship within a broader context

History 499 provides the opportunity for history majors to write an original major research paper. In addition, it fulfills part of the writing-intensive requirement for the history major. In this course we will focus on researching enslavement, abolition and the Underground Railroad. Your research projects will grow out of your increased understanding of these activities and their operation. Enslavement and its abolition was one of the major issues in the United States leading up to the Civil War. Southerners saw enslavement as a positive good for themselves and for the enslaved people they controlled. Abolitionists saw enslavement as a blemish on the nation and were committed to bringing it to an end. The participants of the Underground Railroad took direct action to undermine enslavement by aiding enslaved people seeking freedom. Reading the ideas and stories about these topics, investigating how they functioned, and examining how historians have assessed this movement will provide the foundation for the research conducted by class participants.

The Underground Railroad was a complex operation which over the years has had many myths connected to it. Sorting the myths from reality will enable students to better understand how historians assess research material and craft a thesis for their work. They will then apply these insights to the writing of their own research paper for the class. You do not need to have previous knowledge about enslavement, abolition or the Underground Railroad for this course. You will gain that knowledge in the course of the semester. I do assume that you have experience in historical analysis and understand the difference between primary and secondary sources, can identify the main thesis of a scholarly work, and have previously used footnotes. This is your opportunity to apply that knowledge and to hone your skills as a historian by producing a well-researched and thoughtfully crafted 20 page research paper.

10% Bibliographic essay
15% Rough Draft outline of paper
10% Final paper presentation
50% Final paper

Failure to complete any of the written assignments will result in automatic failure of the class. Each student will also have a mandatory conference with the instructor; failure to have this conference will result in automatic failure of the class.

All assignments must be turned in during the class period designated by the instructor. Late materials will be penalized one-quarter grade for each day after the due date. After the due date has passed, late material must be turned in before 5:00 and verified by the program coordinator in the Robinson Office of the East Building in order to be counted for that day.

If you are unable to turn in an assignment due to an emergency, you must bring a written note from a doctor or the dean. If at all possible, contact me ahead of time so that we can arrange for an alternative time for you to complete the work.

The class participation grade will be based on the students’ preparation for and contribution to class discussions. In preparing for class students should complete all the required readings and be prepared to answer and ask questions regarding the reading. A student’s discussion grade will be evaluated not according to the amount of talking that student does, but rather according to whether that student contributes thoughtfully and constructively, based on a careful consideration of the readings. Students cannot contribute to class discussions if they are absent, consequently, repeated unexcused absences will be reflected in their participation grade.

All plagiarism cases will be automatically submitted to GMU’s honor committee. According to GMU’s honor code, plagiarism includes the following: 1. Presenting as one’s own words, the work, or the opinions of someone else without proper acknowledgement. 2. Borrowing the sequence of ideas, the arrangement of material, or the pattern of thought of someone else without proper acknowledgement.
